

MASTER OF SCIENCE IN TRANSFORMATIVE EDUCATION AND SOCIAL CHANGE

Earn your M.S. in Transformative Education and Social Change (TESC) from the regional leader in education. West Chester University was founded as a teachers college, and educating our nation's teachers remains at the core of the University's mission.

The M.S. in Transformative Education and Social Change develops empowered educators, transformative intellectuals and democratic agents within their communities. Our TESC program focuses on a critical action research project that allows students to construct dynamic programs and practices in response to issues they see within their own teaching environments. This cohort-based program provides a rewarding experience for educators who seek to have a positive, meaningful, and critical impact on their students and the world we all share with them.

At WCU, we believe that high standards of scholarship and the application of research, as well as professionalism, collaboration, and knowledge of current trends in the field, are essential for all teachers. Our graduates are experts in developing and implementing transformative practices that affect change in schools and communities.
